

PETERSBURG.

REVENUE RECEIPTS AND TARIFF EXPORTS.—REARMASTER MASON, SHIPMENT OF MEAL—DIVISION OF A DAB-BUST—AN INTRIGUING CASE—PROSECUTION FOR ALLEGED OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE—THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.)

SEPTEMBER 18, 1880.

The internal-revenue collections in the Petersburg district for the week ending today amounted to $18,572.73. The exports of manufactured tobacco during the week ending yesterday amounted to $6,318 pounds.

The Readjusters held a mass-meeting at the Academy of Music last evening, over which General Mahone presided. The General made a brief address of thanks, and declared that he had no doubt of the success of the Readjuster electoral ticket in November. He and others had just returned from Richmond, where they had been in treaty with the latter body. The conduct of the latter party, he said, will give the Readjusters the victory in November. The speeches at the evening were made by Captain Frank S. Blair, of Wythe county, and Colonel Fannin, of the Valley, both of whom gave glowing accounts of the state of feeling as to the Readjusters in the interior of the State. The matter of proposed compromise between the two parties was briefly touched upon by each gentleman. Otherwise very little that was new or important was said. The meeting at first was quite a large one, but the numbers diminished considerably during the progress of the evening, and a very rare exhibition of enthusiasm on the occasion.

There was a shipment of one thousand bushels of meal from this city today to Raleigh, N. C. These shipments are made regularly.

It is understood that an engagement has been made by Rev. Dr. Hawthorne, of Richmond; Attorney-General Field, Rev. Dr. Eaton, of this city, and several other gentlemen, to take a deer-hunt on Monday in Greensville county. This game is so plentiful out in that section that no doubt is felt of a fine success.

A case of considerable interest is to come before United-States-Commissioner Gallagher this afternoon. In July last William H. Pond, a citizen of Southampton county, was brought before the Commissioner on the charge of violating the United States laws. The main witness against him was one J. P. Davis (colored). During the progress of the examination Pond swore out a warrant for the arrest of Davis, charging him with having obtained goods from him under false pretenses. Davis was arrested and placed in jail, and his appearance before the Commissioner was subsequently sent to Southampton county to be tried under the warrant. On this charge he was acquitted, but being a convict, he was charged by the Commissioner with having failed to give bond to answer the warrant, was attended by an officer. Pond was sent on for trial at the October term of the court, and Davis was subsequently sent to Southampton county to be tried under the warrant. On this charge he was acquitted, but being a convict, he was charged by the Commissioner with having failed to give bond to answer the warrant, was attended by an officer. Pond was sent on for trial at the October term of the court, and Davis was subsequently sent to Southampton county to be tried under the warrant.

This is the case that has recently been blazoned for through the Radical press of the North, and which has excited a considerable political excitement. A short time ago, on complaint and oath made by Colonel James D. Brady, Commissioner Gallagher issued a warrant for the arrest of W. H. Pond, charging that the said Pond did in July last "corruptly endeavor to obstruct and impede the due administration of justice in the District Court of the United States for the Eastern district of Virginia by corruptly swearing out a warrant of arrest for one J. P. Davis, he being then and there a witness for the United States in a complaint against the said Pond for a violation of the internal-revenue laws of the United States." The District Court at Richmond; and that said Pond well knew that there was no ground for the issuing of said warrant, and that the same was caused to be issued and executed by him with intent to deter the said Davis from testifying as a witness, or to unlawfully influence the testimony in said case, now pending in the aforesaid court.

Davis was brought to this city today by Deputy-Marshal Caldwell from Southampton county jail on a habeas corpus issued by Judge Hughes, and all the witnesses in the case are in the city. The District Judge Lewis is present to represent the prosecution, and Messrs. Bernard and Lyon will defend the accused. The case attracts a good deal of interest.

The attendance at the public schools this week shows a large increase over the enrollment of pupils during the first week of the last session. There will be several hundred more of children at these schools this year than last.

ROBIN ADAIR.

DANVILLE.

FIRE-PLUG RAISING.—NEW TELEGRAPH LINES.—MILTON AND SUTHERLIN RAILROAD.—PERSONALS.

(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.)

SEPTEMBER 18, 1880.

Two frame buildings, the property of Mrs. J. J. Lawson, were burned down last night, and with the houses some tobacco stored in them was destroyed. Losses not heavy, and they are said to be fully covered by insurance.

It is to be a flag-raising by the Hancock and English and Cabell Club on the 22d, and several of the speakers of the city have been invited to deliver addresses as part of the ceremonies. Distinguished speakers from abroad had been spoken for, but they replied that they had previous engagements. It is rather singular that this flag-raising is to take place on the day after the assembling of the Republican Convention. Nothing but an accidental coincidence, I am sure. Speaking of the Republican Convention, people from Henry county say that the nomination will be between Mr. L. P. Ledges and Captain George D. Gravelly.

The American Union Telegraph Company propose running lines to this place, and it is given out that application will be made to the Council at the next regular meeting for permission to enter the city limits. It is not probable that the application will be rejected.

Messrs. Eustace Hunt and W. M. Watkins, directors of the Milton and Sutherland Railroad, were here last night on business with Major Sutherland concerning the road. It is said that they are to be in the city for some time, and that they will next be taken to get the management of the road from the hands of Major Sutherland, the lessee, into the hands of the company.

Mr. E. E. Edson has been appointed to the office of the city in place of Mr. W. J. J. Lawson, resigned.

Mr. Willis Wooding, of this county, died on the 11th instant, in his eighty-fourth year.

Dr. M. C. Douglas, of this city, who has recently settled here from Pennsylvania, and had just recovered from a spell of illness, went North day before yesterday on a visit to friends and relatives.

Senator J. T. Stovall was here yesterday. Weather still delightful. ALFA.

STAUNTON.

MORE HARKNESS CLUBS IN AUGUSTA.—THE COUNTY TROOPHOODY ACCUSED.—A VIGOROUS CANVASS.—DEATH OF A SOLDIER.

(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.)

SEPTEMBER 17, 1880.

During the last week two more Hancock and English clubs have been organized in Augusta by the regulars—one at Spring Hill, with 110 members, and the following officers: President, John A. Mills; Vice-Presidents, Peter H. Se, W. W. Chelmsford, W. H. Smith, and Dr. A. G. Van Lear; Secretary, J. A. Chelmsford; and J. B. Trout; Treasurer, J. B. Trout. It is claimed there are only three thirty-ticket men at this precinct. The other club was organized at Newport, with 64 members and the following named gentlemen officers: Pres-

PAN-PRESBYTERIAN.

Meeting of a Great Body of Philadelphia.

THE SECOND GATHERING OF THIS KIND IN THE WORLD—POWERS AND AIMS OF THE CONVENT—PROGRAMME OF THE SESSIONS—THE MEN WHO WILL BE THERE.

(Baltimore American.)

The meeting of the Presbyterian Alliance, known also as the Pan-Presbyterian Council, in Philadelphia this week, will without doubt mark an era in the American Presbyterian Church. Never before in the history of that Church in this country has such a distinguished body been called to assemble, and the result, growing out of its deliberations will probably be of a most marked and beneficial character, productive of good throughout the entire Church. It is the second meeting of the Alliance, the first having been held in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated. The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

PAN-PRESBYTERIAN.

Meeting of a Great Body of Philadelphia.

THE SECOND GATHERING OF THIS KIND IN THE WORLD—POWERS AND AIMS OF THE CONVENT—PROGRAMME OF THE SESSIONS—THE MEN WHO WILL BE THERE.

(Baltimore American.)

The meeting of the Presbyterian Alliance, known also as the Pan-Presbyterian Council, in Philadelphia this week, will without doubt mark an era in the American Presbyterian Church. Never before in the history of that Church in this country has such a distinguished body been called to assemble, and the result, growing out of its deliberations will probably be of a most marked and beneficial character, productive of good throughout the entire Church. It is the second meeting of the Alliance, the first having been held in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.

The idea, once formed, it was fully considered by such a Council as the one held in 1877. The first idea of such a council is said to have been in an address by Rev. Dr. Musgrave, delivered in the General Assembly of 1870, with whom also many of the important movements in the Presbyterian Church have originated.</